

A must read for Each INDIAN and Nationalist.

Dear readers,

Let us go in to the depth of the issue of Banning Gutkha or plastic pack.

Indian character of people at large seems many times much away from patriotism when the question arises for earning money. There are facts to prove this.

- a) NASA has 25% of its employees as INDIANS. Indian engineers and experts can do wonders at NASA but not in INDIA, in the country they do not have appreciation and atmosphere to perform against expected or world-level rewards. We have talent, it is not appreciated within the Nation, courtesy the traditional standards of culture, systems, mentality... it is a cyclic phenomenon, again courtesy _ _ _ constitution.
- b) Indian Entrepreneurs slip in to competition fastest, to market their product/s. As to kill the competition, people supply goods and services desperately such that the quality does not stay at standard. To do so, in-put cost needs to be minimized (to pocket more in fact) and so obviously quality cannot be achieved. "Many business houses concentrate on the competition and not on to their own product or services" as once narrated by Mr. Kaki Dadisheth, the then Chairperson of TISCO. They (Many INDIAN MANUFACTURERS) exist always to bother about the competition it seems.
- c) The manufacturers or service providers do not eye the market size; hardly understand the market segments and geographic concentration of the market/s. An individual as a manufacturer or a service provider sees the entire size of the market as its own and does not want to leave anything for anybody else. And this is the root cause of the issue. In order to overdo, the quality is not taken care of. Ultimately, we know what happens. Plus the ever-hungry, reservation seats occupied recruits of State and Central Government, socially and culturally unfit and almost ill characters, need to be fed almost daily and so the manufacturers have to compromise. They compromise since their own DNA are weak, they are not strong to fight the rotten systems.
- d) Some ethic-less manufacturers keep the prices of machineries at highest, at par with the best of the manufacturers for their lousy machinery and products, openly saying that the catalogues have to be like beautiful prostitutes (Good looking from outside) and in the name of the quality, simply better fabrication and color scheme (as copied down ditto from German machinery) is offered. Honest, God-fearing, simple, coming from rural sector, uninformed, illiterate Indian buyer is not enough smarter at times; which is to the advantage of such lousy and no metro or big city based dishonest manufacturer/s.

The Nation experienced one more killing practice exercised in our country, the manufacturers of Plastic films hand in glove with politicians (?) ultimately passing down the costs on to the general people like us.

The story is in the air which is well known to the many bigger (bigger by money) people.

GUTKHA, many people hate this culture of pan and Gutkha and spiting of irresponsible people (Exception: Smaller Indian cities, where illiterates are more, in fact with the current context they must be termed an Anti-National, spitting here and there. How can they spit on their MOTHER?, Mother India) who are mostly from poorer sections of the society (percentage wise), who are usually with the least concerned of usage of the brain when they spit on the space which is meant for the people at large (No arguments please).

Gutkha gifts cancer. And so a class of the society was advocating ban on it.

Think of the so-called ban on Plastic pack of Gutkha.

The biggest ever Joke Government of INDIA and its illiterate and ill-educated and corrupt ministers tried to implement in INDIA. Of course this was before 2014.

Gutkha pack was/ is smaller and the same or almost Similar pack of much larger size : NAMKEEN is continuing. Both packs were and are thrown on open land by ill-educated lot of people who can and must be termed as Anti-Nationals since they spoil the Motherland.

In fact the Educated and well literate (?) ministers must have implemented 'NO throwing of any trash' on the roads and instead they implement ban on Gutkha and they argue that it gifts cancer. Yes But why not BAN Gutkha itself? Since it earned a lot of money for some small group of people and politicians?

Ban on plastics is impossible as long as we do not have alternate packaging material. And to ban Gutkha pack of plastic is a big joke and major cheating with the India's good. Why not ban similar Aluminized plastic used to pack Nankeen?

Also there was a big game played by a few in this country which is here described for many to note and understand the Anti-National activity of Few Politicians and few business houses of the unfortunate MOTHERLAND INDIA.

Just before the BAN on Gutkha was announced officially by the GOI publically, a few BOPET and BOPP manufacturers got together, ( They came to know about such ban was to be implemented, obviously much money must have changed hands, prove this if wrong ) made a consortium and the Film price shoot up to 210 or 220 per Kg.? While the raw material PET etcetera was just at Rs 65 per Kg.? Many then soon started entering this business of making BOPET / BOPP film and ordered to German companies for their film lines, to another German Manufacturer for slitter re-winders etcetera and invested heavy in to making buildings and other utilities.

Soon after such orders for the lines, The ban on GUTKHA Pack of plastic was announced; by that time the consortium had pushed a lot of material in to the market at very unreasonably high prices, it must be termed as almost LOOT. Where the MRTPC was at that time? Since only few lot of people was making such film which is and was used by many at large inclusive of textile makers of SURAT. AND, Why such film, which is and was made by just a few is and not controlled by MRTPC? Because it is PLASTIC, a commodity which creates nuisance to Environment. Because it is PLASTIC which is a Petroleum by product, a resource limited.

This government and politicians and a few businessmen just and simply and coolly LOOT this nation's Public at large.

{ Please note that Inner layer of such a pack id a multilayer (generally) LD/LLD film of about 30 to 40 Micron, Middle layer is Aluminized BOPP/ BOPET of about 12 micron and outer most layer is Reversed printed BOPP/ BOPET of about 12 micron thickness. }

And Only Gutkha pack was banned. NONE in the country objected the similar packs of NAMKEEN.....

Some state governments have banned 20 micron or less, now may be even less than or up to 40 Micron thick LD/LLD Blown films being used / used as the carry bags. This ban is not effective in most banned areas. BUT there will be a day when such things shall be banned.

PP non woven was also highly argued to be banned since it is also 100 % (In fact with up to 30% CaCO<sub>3</sub>) Plastic and it can also be banned any day now. BEWARE.

The question is why such Plastic is not banned seriously and completely: Government wishes to protect whom? The one who runs the government? Many converters? Many more people who are engaged in to this trade?

Start calculating dear friends:

The people involved in this trade start from:

- 1) The Rag Pickers (many of them are ladies and in INDIA ladies are to be priorities) They are millions of poor people whose lively hood is 100% dependent of the rags they pick.
- 2) The Rag collectors / distributors (Generally Shops) and their small staff.
- 3) The vendors who move a lot to collect such rags and trash.
- 4) The Factory owners to whom such trash / used plastic go for re-cycling.
- 5) The staff (many ladies they have) to segregate the plastic, to wash it and take it to the roof top for drying it under sun/ open.
- 6) The small transporters who sue auto rickshaw to transport such Rags to the processors and to the market .
- 7) There are thousands of shops across the Nation to sell such Carry bags, Many people work at such shops.
- 8) There are Cary bag vendors who distribute the bags in Kg. pack to the vegetable vendors and shop keepers

There are a big number of people depending upon this trade of Plastic. [We do not wish to discuss the inability of INDIAN Government to explore the quantity oil form our own land, inability to import the oil at the least cost, inability to compel the local refineries to tighten the margins and costs.....]

AND yet there is pressure form a few environmentalists to ban Plastic. It is like Tom and Jerry kinds of fights neither Tom dies nor Jerry.

Ultimately the crux of this story telling is, it is the time to be smarter and divert towards more lucrative projects, without competition or the things those cannot be banned. There are many plastic items which can be made and yet with the guarantee that they will never be banned. Plus there is hardly any competition in INDIA, yet for such things.
